Bradley Segebarth, MD

Bio

Dr. Segebarth specializes in treating disorders of the spine. After graduating orthopedic surgery residency at Vanderbilt University Medical Center, he completed a spine surgery fellowship at OrthoCarolina. He then practiced spine surgery in Knoxville, TN at UTMC for two years before returning to Charlotte. He now serves as the Director of the OrthoCarolina Spine Fellowship Program. He has published numerous scientific articles on spine surgery and has a passion for teaching. He serves as a reviewer for multiple peer-reviewed spine journals. Dr. Segebarth is actively involved with AO Spine North America and has served in national roles on the AOSNA Fellowship Committee, and currently the AOSNA Education Committee. His clinical interests include complex spine reconstruction, degenerative spine conditions, scoliosis, and spine trauma. Outside of work, Dr. Segebarth enjoys time with his wife and four children participating in outdoors, athletics, and traveling.
